

ABSTRACT

A Mobile Care Framework is provided which uses an embedded diagnostic component, a device agent, to forward device profile data and receive update and problem solutions for implementation and execution with the device. Preferably, the data and solutions are 5 communicated with a remotely located customer care application within the Mobile Care Framework using over-the-air communication.